Directory of Service Providers

“Connecting Students, Families & Community to Make College a Reality for Thousands of District Students.”
Introduction

DC-CAP surveyed over 3,000 high school graduates to identify college enrollment, retention, and graduation trends. Results from the survey indicate that personal and family issues have a significant impact on post-secondary attainment, persistence and completion. Many students reported that issues such as homelessness, hunger, domestic violence, mental illness and a host of others are often more impactful than the lack of college monies or inadequate academic preparation. As a result, the DC-CAP Directory of Service Providers was developed to provide additional supports to address these concerns. The directory includes a listing of government and community resources that support healthy life styles for at-risk youth and their families. Included in the directory are services that address both prevention and intervention supports.

The document is recommended for use by DC-CAP Advisors, school administrators, teachers, school guidance counselors, support staff, students, and parents in the provision of services for at-risk youth and their families. In addition, this document is an excellent resource for community-based providers and allied health professionals working with diverse populations and their families. Additional copies of the document may be found at the DC College Access Program (DC-CAP) website, www.dccap.org by linking to the Directory of Service Providers.
